THREE TOWNS
ARE ORGANIZED*Dawson, Vanderbilt and Dickerson Run Plan For Great Improvement*IN ALL THEIR CIVIC LINES

Enthusiasm is strong and another meeting will be held tomorrow evening—better trade and good government the objects.

Special to The Courier.

DAWSON, March 29.—A preliminary organization was effected here last night with its object the improvement of the commercial and civic conditions of this locality. The people of Dawson, Vanderbilt, Dickerson Run and vicinity associated at the Firemen's hall and L. S. Mullinger called the meeting to order and stated in a neat little address that it was called for the purpose of organizing a board of trade. He entertained notions for the election of a chairman and A. J. Cochran was elected to this position.

Chairman Cochran said in explanation the chair that the object of the organization as contemplated is the encouragement and protection of trade and business interests of the vicinity, and the promotion and advancement of every legitimate enterprise for the growth, progress, prosperity and good government of the community, and the cultivation of agreeable business and social relations among those who become members.

L. S. Mullinger was elected secretary of the organization, after which a general discussion took place which showed that much enthusiasm is felt by the people over the proposition. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws, and another meeting will be held on Wednesday evening when a permanent organization will be made.

Poison For Cows About
Scottdale

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, March 29.—Farmers about here are puzzled and alarmed by a strange illness that has affected their cattle, several cows being very sick, and at least one of them having died. A fine cow belonging to Harry Felgar, west of town, took sick and died within a few hours. Cows belonging to John L. Shively, John Kiefer and James F. Fries all in one neighborhood, a mile west of town, are very sick. Dr. S. Palmer, the veterinarian, who attended the animals believes that lead poisoning is the cause but whether feed has been accidentally poisoned is not known. This occurs where white lead is used for painting about barns or where it may get in feed through carelessly throwing paint around or the tops of paint cans or tops of kegs with white lead would get in reach of the cows.

LEISERING DAY

Was Observed in Police Court This Morning.

Arthur Bonnett, an amiable negro from Leisening, declared it was all a mistake to accuse him of being drunk. He denied the charges in toto. Owing to the hopeless condition of the man, the judge did not deem it wise to keep him in custody and ordered his discharge. With one arm entirely off and the other useless, the man is in a wretched condition. He managed pretty well, however, in spite of his disabilities.

It was Leisening day in police court. James Sweeney, of that place, faced charges of being both drunk and disorderly. He was given $72 bond, not having the necessary $5.

DR. W. S. EARNST DEAD.

Immigrants Pass Through.

An immigrant train with 11 cars passed through Connellville this morning. All of the cars were filled with newly arrived foreign laborers and their families.

Sewer Permit Expires April 1st; Borough Will Secure Extension

As the permit of the borough to empty sewage into the Youghiogheny river expires April 1 it will be necessary to secure a further extension of time. This, it is believed, will not be difficult, for the work is progressing on the comprehensive sewer plan, as directed by the State.

There has been no disposition on the part of the State Health Department to embarrass municipalities by withholding these permits and an extension will likely be granted.

Connellsville has fallen in line with the ideas of the State department by ordering the preparation of a comprehensive sewer plan. Borough Engineer Hogg is working on this and good progress has been made. It is not known when it will be completed.

No Criticism On Roosevelt Speech;
Giving High Teas

United Press Telegram.

CAIRO, March 29.—The Nationalist press today does not bitterly attack Colonel Roosevelt as was expected as the result of yesterday's speech. The absence of criticism is attributed to Roosevelt's private reception at the Egyptian editors Sunday when he said that "men must have the courage of their convictions but show a tolerant spirit towards those who differ in opinions."

The Colonel received congratulatory messages from English statesmen upon the fearlessness of his address.

The Roosevelt visited the bazaars and purchased souvenirs. Commandor Tanaka of the Japanese fleet called this afternoon. This afternoon the parties will visit the citadel and two museums and six mosques.

Colonel Roosevelt gave tea for Prince Eitel Frederick and will have high tea for his hunting companions from Khartoum. Roosevelt conversed with the German Prince.

A PITCHED BATTLE

Between Foreigners at Simpson Works Results in Murder.

UNIONTOWN, March 29.—August Test is dead and 13 men are in the county jail as the result of a pitched battle between foreigners at Simpson Works, near Brownsville, Saturday night. The fight was between a party of Magyars and Italians who lived next to each other. All of the men arrested deny knowing anything about the death of Test. More arrests will probably be made today.

COW KIDNAPED

From Livery Stable After It Had Been Arrested.

Who kidnaped the cow? That is the question which Chief of Police George Hetzel would like explained. Late Saturday evening Officer James Francis arrested a cow which was straying about on the South Side. He tied the cow securely with a rope and Chief Hetzel later put a halter around the cow's neck.

This morning when the officers went to Hetzel's livery stable they found the cow missing. Just then it got away none of the employees about the stable could tell. The officers are confident that it did not break loose and suspect that the owner came after the cow and took it without going through the formality of paying the costs.

Police Say The Accused Will Tell All

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 29.—The parents of Albert Wolter, the alleged slayer of 15 year old Ruth Wheeler, today secured Attorney Wallace Scott to defend their son. The attorney conferred with the prisoner this morning in the Tombs. He instructed Wolter not to talk. Attorney Scott said: "There is no question but that Wolter is innocent. The evidence of the police seems strong against him and damaging, but I am convinced that he didn't kill the child and that his innocence can be conclusively proven in court."

The police insist that the circumstantial evidence in their possession is sufficient to convict Wolter of murder in the first degree. Inspector Titus says: "Lawyer or no lawyer, Wolter will finally tell all."

The father left early for his work, and the fire is believed to have originated from a gas jet. Mrs. Rowe was awakened, but the fire was already so far gone that her escape was cut off. She screamed an alarm from a second story window, and she and the three children were carried down ladders as the flames burst into the room. The two that perished were sleeping in an adjoining room and did not awaken. Their bodies were so badly burned as to be unrecognizable.

FOURTH OF JULY*Culture Club Members Will Take Matter Up With Burgess*ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Mrs. E. B. Burgess is Chosen President—Mrs. W. O. Schoonover Reports on Meeting of State Civic Committee at Pittsburgh Last Week.

A more sane and safe Fourth of July celebration was discussed yesterday afternoon at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Woman's Culture Club held in Carnegie Free Library, and following a talk by Mrs. W. O. Schoonover it was decided that the club would take up the matter with Burgess J. L. Evans. Mrs. Schoonover was present at a luncheon given last Tuesday afternoon at the Schenley Hotel in honor of Mrs. Owen Wister of Philadelphia, chairman of the State Civic Committee. The other guests present included the chairmen of the civic committees of the districts. Mrs. Schoonover is chairman of the Fayette county district and she gave a fine report of the meeting.

Sane and safe Fourth of July celebrations were discussed at length by Mrs. Wister and during her talk she stated that during the past 15 years more deaths had resulted from Fourth of July celebrations than during the war for Independence. Mrs. Wister also urged that leagues be formed among the school children looking toward the civic improvement of cities and towns. The planting of trees was also discussed by the local club women and it was decided to donate two for the Carnegie Free Library grounds.

The annual election of officers was a principal feature of the business session. The nominating committee submitted their report and the following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. E. B. Burgess; Vice Presidents, Mrs. E. B. Edle and Miss Ida Wolfe; Recording Secretary, Miss Harriet Clark; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Florence Goldsmith; Treasurer, Mrs. Nettie Tremmell Cotton. "Women of the Stage," the subject for study was then taken up and fully discussed. Mrs. H. T. Crossland, leader, gave a very interesting talk in general on the subject. She stated that the work of the majority of actresses was superior to that of actors. Miss Elizabeth Clark read a very well prepared paper on "The Story of My Life," by Ellen Terry. Mrs. Sherrick read an instructive paper on "Sara Bernhardt." A paper on "Sarah Siddons" was read by Miss Myers.

CANDIDATE WISE AND HIS RESIDENCE.

The Winesburg Messenger, an ancient and honorable organ of the Backwater Democracy of Greene county, insists that Jesse H. Wise, who aspires to be the Democratic candidate for Congress in this district, is a bona fide resident of that county. It says:

The esteemed Connelville Courier (Republican) seems inclined to poke fun at the congressional candidacy of Jesse H. Wise and asserts that Mr. Wise is a resident of Pittsburgh, or Allegheny county, outside of the district which he seeks to represent in the Lower House of Congress. In regard to Mr. Wise's present place of residence, the Courier, we fear, is misled by considering only former discussions of that name subject. Whenever Mr. Wise may have resided at various times in the past, it is only just to say that at present he is registered as a voter in the North Ward of the borough of Winesburg, residing with his family on East High street. The fact that he is a member of the Allegheny county Bar, and necessarily spends much of his time at his offices in Pittsburgh, does not establish that city as his legal place of residence. Editor consider a case of fairness will not doubt prompt him to acknowledge his error in this respect.

The Courier is not to be faulted for lack of fairness, even in politics where prejudice and passion stalk hand in hand. We therefore cheerfully give currency to the explanation of The Messenger concerning the residence of Candidate Wise.

It would seem that Candidate Wise's situation is somewhat similar to that of the lately recent "Jon" Crossland. The latter's political ambition rose no higher than the office of ward constable, which he filled with efficiency; but he became afflicted enough to possess a summer home in Bullock township as well as a town home in Connelville. He claimed the right to elect where his voting place should be, but there was a decided public disposition to make him confine his choice to the township. We incline to the view that when a man has summer and winter homes, he is entitled to vote in the country and homes in the city, that he should be permitted to choose his proper voting district. Candidate Wise no doubt has a legal as well as a moral right to vote in Greene county.

But there is an old-fashioned notion in this district that it ought to be represented by a man who not only resides here continuously, but whose business activities and interests are here among the people of the district. Candidate Wise may visit his family in Greene county at stated intervals, but his office and his business and his interests are in Allegheny county, and in that sense he will be regarded by the mass of voters in this Congressional district as a "foreigner."

However, if the Democrats of the district want to make him their candidate it won't make any difference whether he resides in Winesburg or Pittsburgh, or Jackson township or elsewhere, since he will continue to reside there after the election just the same as before.

THE TRITOWN BOARD OF TRADE.

The formation of a joint Board of Trade by the business men of Dawson, Jackson, Run and Vanderhill, for the purpose of promoting the interests of that community, is one of the wisest public movements the people have put forth in many a day, and it deserves the earnest and hearty support of every good citizen who seeks through the advancement of the town in which he lives to increase the value of his property or the profits of his business.

The municipal community of interest established by the formation of this commercial body was doubtless prompted by the joint efforts of the three towns for a free county bridge, and when that is established perhaps the way will be open for a consolidation of all the towns into one larger borough and the extension of the Vanderhill trolley branch across the river into Dawson proper. This is something the people can look forward to. It may be said that the towns are not close enough together, but it must be remembered that the trolley system of travel does much toward annihilating time and distance. There is also the possibility, not at all remote, that the Dawson-Jackson-Vanderhill community may take on new and rapid growth when the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youghiogheny branch becomes a trunk line through to Baltimore. The Board of Trade should guard carefully against the fate which overtakes so many movements of this character. They blaze up with force and enthusiasm which only serves to burn out their energies and leave nothing but the ashes of dead hopes behind. The Board of Trade should carefully consider and intelligently discuss public questions, and when the conclusions are arrived at talk should cease an work begin. There is wisdom in open counsel, but efficiency in concentrated direction. Above all interest in this work should never be permitted to drag.

The Board of Trade is capable of doing much for the towns in whose interest it is formed. Its efficiency depends upon the people themselves.

KING COAL WILL FOOT THE BILL.
The authorities of Somerset county have been mandamusd by some of its indignant citizens who seek to compel the construction of better quarters for the poor and insane.

There is no longer any excuse for Somerset county not being up to date in its public buildings. Much opposition to the construction of the new court house was made, yet it was built and the taxpayers have not had their burdens materially added to. Somerset county is no longer an exclusively agricultural community. It has become a coal producing county of importance. It was the coke business which built Fayette county's court house and other buildings, and which will provide the remainder of the same wants in Somerset county.

It will be folly of the part of the citizens and authorities there not to have the improvements now. There is the possibility of their waiting too long. In any event, the cost of such buildings can be provided by a bond issue whose liquidation will cause no inconvenience to anybody, just as was the case in Fayette county.

King Coal will foot the bill.
The Washington Observer wants a real nice skating park for the Catholic community. Washington has not had any surplus of water during the summer time. It might be a good plan for the water company to build a big storage dam and use it for skating in the winter and a reservoir water supply in the summer.

The Johnstown Tribune suggests that private mailing boxes be required in the towns and cities as they are along the rural routes. Why not?

The Altoona Gazette wants the anti-spitting law enforced. At the same time it admits that such laws are seldom enforced, and it would be better, therefore, that the Gazette was making something difficult.

The Bellefonte Enterprise rejoices over the fact that a new Lake Erie railroad station is promised of that town. Further, it says that they are along the rural routes. Why not?

The Washington Reporter thinks the mining laws of Pennsylvania are better than those of most States, but that they are still far from being perfect. They will long remain so. Legislative perfection is a dream.

The Canonsburg Notes wants to know why it is that Washington college students can go on a rampage without being arrested or having anything said concerning their acts of vandalism. Canonsburg once had a college of its own, but that was a long time ago. Perhaps The Notes does not remember.

The Washington Observer also takes issue with the United States Herald regarding the latter's recent statement that it has "the largest and best circulation ever enjoyed by any newspaper, daily or weekly, in Fayette or three or four adjoining counties." The Washington Observer is evidently "S.P. 2" and the returns are not all in.

The Donora American calls on the Monongahela valley towns in Washington county to unite their political strength for the purpose of advancing their mutual interests against the dictation and appropriation of the county seat to town. It says the river boroughs pay large shares of the taxes and should have a large share of the benefits. If the situation is correctly stated, what the Monongahela towns need is a community of mutual interest. That ought not to be hard to effect. They are already suspected of having a community of political interest.

The Culture Club takes time by the forelock and appeals to Burgess Evans to enforce a safe and sane observance of the Fourth of July. The appeal is timely and proper. ## JUSTICE BREWER DIES SUDDENLY

Expires In Bathroom at His Washington Home

BIG LOSS TO SUPREME BENCH

Aged Jurist, While Not in the Best of Health, Was Not Thought Dangerously Ill—Death Was Due to Apoplexy.

Washington, March 29.—Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court died last night at his residence, 1921 Sixteenth street.

Justice Brewer had not been feeling well for more than a week, but he had not been obliged to take his bed. He had enjoyed Easter with members of his family.

A half hour before death he told Mrs. Brewer that he was going to retire and entered the bathroom. A few minutes later Mrs. Brewer heard him fall and, reaching the bathroom, found him unconscious. Only the servants were in the house with Mrs. Brewer and she dispatched one of them to the home of Justice Ashley Gould of the District of Columbia supreme court, who lives next door to the Brewers.

When Justice Gould arrived physicians living in the neighborhood had been summoned. Justice Brewer was carried from the bathroom and laid on a bed, but when the doctors arrived a few minutes later he was dead. Apoplexy was the cause of death.

Justice Brewer's two daughters, Mrs. James L. Carrick and Mrs. H. F. Putmore who live in Washington, were summoned and arrived shortly after the physician.

The death of Justice Brewer will be seriously felt by the court in its consideration of the Standard Oil cases. Justice Brewer was regarded as one of the strong men on the court in considering cases involving corporation law. He wrote many important opinions on this subject, among them the Consolidated Gas company case.

Had Served Twenty-one Years.

Justice Brewer was the third oldest justice on the bench. Justice Harlan and Chief Justice Fuller each being seventy-seven years old. Justice Brewer was four years their junior.

In regard to length of service on the bench he also stood third having served for almost twenty-one years.

Justice Brewer had been serving on the bench actively up to the beginning of the Easter recess. He had been feeling well up to the beginning of the recess, although recently he had been troubled with deafness which had worried him considerably.

This is the second death on the supreme bench in the present term. Justice Peckham died early in the term and was succeeded by Justice Lurton. Justice Moody has been ill for several months and probably will not be back on the bench this term. This will leave a bench of seven members.

Justice Brewer's death will be a blow to the public in other ways than as a member of the bench. He was about the only member of the bench who freely expressed his opinion on large public questions. He was particularly outspoken in his criticism of the Roosevelt methods.

Sticker For Constitution.

New York, March 29.—David Inaher had been a justice of the United States supreme court for a little more than twenty years. He was appointed by President Harrison in December, 1889, to succeed Justice Stanley Matthews, and he was sworn in on Jan. 6, 1890. He was born in Sweden, Asia Minor, on June 20, 1837.

Justice Brewer was a sticker for constitutional ideas on and off the bench and in the past few years delivered speeches on that general subject which were read around the world.

Brigadier General Hawkins Dies.

New York, March 29.—Brigadier General Hamilton Hawkins, retired, governor of the National Soldiers' home at Washington, died suddenly at Glen Springs sanitarium, Watkins, N. Y.

PICKED OUT SOFT PLACE

Orville Wright Drops 100 Feet in Aeroplane, But Is Unhurt.

Montgomery, Ala., March 29.—The aeroplane being used by the Wright brothers at the practice grounds near this city fell from a height of 100 feet, but struck easily in soft plowed ground.

Orville Wright, who was driving, was not hurt nor was the machine injured, the descent being in a measure under control.

This is the largest amount ever collected on a single Sunday in any church in the way of voluntary contributions so far as Mr. Stewart knows.

Coquett smiled indulgently. "What did you do with the sugar?" he asked.

"The sugar?" she gasped.

"Yes; it was seen by the cab driver you took when you slipped out of the hotel in the telephone girl's raincoat."

"You?" she answered weakly.

"And you threw it into the Seine as you crossed the Concord bridge?"

She stared at him in genuine admiration. "My God, you're the cleverest man I ever met!"

M. Paul smiled. "I can return the compliment by saying that it isn't every day that you could throw a clumsy thing like an sugar from a moving cab over a wide roadway and a stone wall and land it in a river. I suppose you threw it over on the right hand side?"

"Yes."

"How far across the bridge had you got when you threw it? This may help the divers."

"We were a little more than half-way across."

"Who bought this sugar?"

"Martinez."

"Did you suggest the holes through the wall?"

"He did."

"But the holes were bored for you because you wanted to see into the next room?"

"Yes, in a low tone."

"And why?"

She burst out in a flash of feeling. "Because I knew that a watch-dogging girl was going to be there with—"

"Yes?" eagerly.

"With my husband!"

"Then your husband was the person you thought guilty that night?" questioned Coquett.

"Yes."

"You told M. Kitzredge when you called for him to call that you thought your husband guilty?"

"Yes, but afterward I changed my mind. My husband had nothing to do with it. If he had, do you suppose I would have told you this? No doubt he has miscondemned himself, but—"

"You mean Anita?"

It was a chance shot, but it went true. She stared at him in amazement. "I believe you are the devil," she said, and the detective, recalling his talk with M. Kitzredge, muttered to himself, "The tall blond! Of course!"

And now Pussy, feeling that she could gain nothing against Coquett by rise or deceit, took refuge in simple truth and told quite charmingly how this whole tragic adventure had grown out of a foolish bit of jealousy.

"You see, I found a little blue on my husband's dressing table one morning. I wish to heaven he would be more careful and not let it rest in it. It began to grow bigger, and was signed 'The petite Anita,' and—naturally I was furious. I have often been jealous of Addison, but he has always managed to prove that I was in the wrong and that he was a perfect saint, so now I determined to see for myself. It was a splendid chance, as the exact rendezvous was given—8 o'clock Saturday evening, in private room No. 7 at the Ansonia. I couldn't go alone, so I got this man Martinez—he was a perfect fool—I got him to take me because, as I told you, he didn't know me and, being such a fool, he would do whatever I wished."

"What day was it you found the little blue?" put in Coquett.

"It was Thursday. I saw Martinez that afternoon."

"And you are sure it was his scheme to have the holes?"

"Yes, but I said that would be an amusing way of watching Addison without making a scandal. It was the first clever idea I ever knew him to have."

"Did you look through the holes at all?" he asked.

"No! I hadn't time."

"Did Martinez look through the first hole after it was bored?"

"Yes, but he couldn't see anything, as No. 7 was dark."

"Then you have absolutely no idea who fired the shot?"

"Absolutely none."

"Except that you think it wasn't your husband?"

"I know it wasn't my husband."

"How do you know that?"

"Because I asked him. Ah, you need not smile. I made him give me proof. When I got home that night I had a horrible feeling that Addison must have done it. So I waited until he came home. I could hear him moving about in his room. I went in and asked him where he had been. He began to lie in the usual way. And then I told him a murder had been committed at the Ansonia in private room No. 7. I wish you could have seen his face. He never said a word. He just stared at me. Well, it was the longest time before I could get anything out of him. Then he explained what had happened. He had started for the Ansonia with this woman, but she had changed her mind in the cab and they had gone to the Cafe de Paris instead and spent the evening there. I said, 'Addison, put your things right on. We're going to the Cafe de Paris to settle this business.' The waiters hadn't gone, and they all swore black and blue that Addison told the truth."

"If I'm" reflected Coquett. "I wonder why Anita charged her maid?"

"I'm not prepared to do for Anita," answered Pussy, with a dignified whiff of her shoulders.

"You know a great deal about this young man who is in prison," he suggested.

"I know he is innocent."

"I hope you can prove it."

"Of course I can prove it," she declared. "M. Kitzredge, an old friend, was arrested because he called for my things, but I asked him to do that. It's absurd."

"I'm afraid it's not so absurd as you think. You say he was an old friend. He must have been a very particular kind of an old friend for you to ask a favor of him that you know and he knew would bring him under suspicion. You did know that, didn't you?"

"Go on; I don't mind," she said. "I was not in love with M. Kitzredge. I please make that perfectly clear. He was a dear, loyal friend, but nothing more."

"Was he enough of a friend to be jealous of Martinez?"

"What was there to make him jealous?"

"Well," smiled Coquett. "I can imagine that if a dear and loyal friend found the lady he was dear and loyal to having supper with another man in a private room he might be jealous."

"The best proof that M. Kitzredge would not be jealous of me is that he loves another woman."

"The girl at Notre Dame?"

"Yes."

"But Martinez knew her too. There might have been trouble over her," ventured M. Paul shrewdly.

"There was no trouble."

"You never knew of any quarrel between Kitzredge and Martinez? No words?"

"Never."

Coquett now resolved to try a chance shot.

He said impressively, "How about Kitzredge's letters to you?"

He watched the effect anxiously.

"His letters to me?" she cried, with a start of dismay, while M. Paul nodded complacently. "He never wrote me letters—that is, not many—and whatever there were—I destroyed."

Coquett eyed her keenly and shook his head. "A woman like you would never write to a man often than he wrote to her, and Kitzredge had a thick bundle of your letters. It was only Saturday night that he burned them, along with that photograph of you in the lace dress."

She looked at him in frightened appeal, and then, with a gesture of half-surrender, "For heaven's sake, how much more do you know about me?"

"I know that you have a bundle of Kitzredge's letters here, possibly in that desk." He pointed to a charming piece of old mahogany inlaid with ivory. He had made this last deduction by following her eyes through these last tortured minutes.

"It isn't true. I-I tell you I destroyed the letters." And he knew she was lying.

Coquett went to the desk and examined it carefully. There were two drawers in a raised part at the back; there was a long, wide drawer in front and over this a space like a drawer under a large hand cover hanging at the back. He searched everywhere, but found no sign of the expected letters.

"Well," he said, with an air of disappointment, "I did nothing here. Suppose we try another room."

"Certainly," she agreed, and her face brightened in such evident relief that he turned to her suddenly and said almost regretfully: "Madam, I hear you are fond of gambling. You should study the game of poker, which teaches us to hide our feelings. Now, then," he walked back quietly to the desk. "I want you to open this secret drawer."

A big tear of weakness and humiliation gathered and rolled down her cheek, and then, still silent, she took a hairpin from her hair, inserted one leg of it into a tiny hole quite lost in the ornamental work at the back of the desk, pushed against a hidden spring, and presto, a small secret drawer shot forward. In this drawer lay a packet of letters tied with a ribbon.

"Thanks," he said. "I'm sorry." And he took the packet from the drawer.

"Why didn't I know them? Why didn't I burn them?" she murmured.

"You trusted to that drawer," he suggested.

"No, no; I know the danger, but I couldn't give them up. They stood for the best part of my life, the tenderest, the happiest, I've been a weak, wicked woman."

"Any secrets in these letters will be scrupulously respected," he assured her, "unless they have a bearing on this crime."

"Turning to him with tear stained face, 'I didn't tell you the truth about Kitzredge and Martinez. There was trouble between them. He speaks about it in one of his letters. It was about the little girl at Notre Dame.'"

"You mean Martinez was attracted to her?"

"Yes."

"Did she encourage him?"

"I don't know. She behaved very strangely. She seemed attracted to him and afraid of him at the same time. Martinez told me what an extraordinary effect he had on the girl. He said it was due to his magnetic power."

"And Kitzredge objected to this?"

"Of course he did, and they were a quarrel. It's all in one of those letters."

"Do you remember what he said?"

"Why—er—yes."

"What was it?"

She hesitated a moment, and then, as though weary of resisting, she replied, "He told Martinez that if he didn't leave this girl alone he would break his head for him."

CHAPTER XII.

THE THIRD FAIR OF DOOTS.

WHEN brought to the Ansonia by the police authorities and shown the two rooms of the tragedy Kitzredge was perfectly calm and denied any knowledge of the affair. He had never seen those holes through the wall. He had never been in the alleyway. He was absolutely innocent, Maitre Pleindoux, his lawyer, nodded in approval. At the morgue, however, Lloyd showed a certain emotion when a door was opened suddenly and he was pushed into a room where he saw Martinez sitting on a chair and looking at him. Martinez with his shattered eye replaced by a glass one and his dead face palated to a horrid semblance of life. This is one of the theatrical tricks of modern procedure, and the American was not prepared for it.

"My God!" he muttered. "He looks alive!"

Nothing was accomplished, however, by the questioning here. Nothing was extracted from the prisoner.

While his nerves were still flagging with the gruesomeness of all this Lloyd was brought to Judge Hauteville's room in the Palais de Justice. He was told to sit down on a chair beside Maitre Pleindoux. A patient secretary sat at his desk. A formidable guard stood before the door with a saber sword in his belt. Then the examination began.

"Kitzredge," began the judge, "you have denied all knowledge of this crime. Look at this pistol and tell me if you have ever seen it before." He offered the pistol to Lloyd's manacled hands. Maitre Pleindoux took it, with a frown of surprise.

"Examine me, your honor," he bowed.

"I would like to speak to my client before he answers that question."

But Kitzredge waved him aside. "What's the use?" he said. "That is my pistol."

"Ah!" exclaimed Hauteville. "It is also the pistol that killed Martinez."

"Now," continued the judge, "you say you have never been in the alleyway that we showed you at the Ansonia. Look at these boots. Do you recognize them?"

In opposition to the advice of his counsel Kitzredge now admitted the ownership of the boots that had made the accusing footprints, but he denied to Hauteville that he had ever quarreled with Martinez. At this Hauteville produced the letter Kitzredge had written Mrs. Wilmet regarding Martinez.

"There was a quarrel, and you did threaten him?"

"I advise my client not to answer that question," interposed the lawyer, and the American was silent.

"As you please," said Hauteville, and he went on grimly. "Kitzredge, you have so far refused to speak of the lady to whom you wrote this letter. She was your mistress. Do you deny that?"

"Yes," cried the American.

"Ah!" shrugged the judge, and, turning to his secretary, "Ask the lady to come in."

Then in a moment of sickening misery Kitzredge saw the door open and a black figure enter with an ashbin white face and frightened eyes. It was Pussy Wilmet, treading the hard way of the transgressor, with her hair done most becomingly and breathing a delicate violet fragrance.

"Take him into the outer room," directed the judge, "until I ring."

You Can Be a Better Cook

It isn't all in the "knack." The utensils you use go a long way toward making your food fine and appetizing or ill-cooked and indigestible.

It's impossible to make the best cookery in utensils that quickly scorch or crack and scale off, rust and corrode. And such utensils are dangerous. Authorities say that cancer comes of eating particles of glass chipped off from ordinary enamel ware when hot.

The heat expands the iron frame but the coating of glass—which is all enamel ware is—does not expand so fast, consequently it breaks and gets mixed with the food.

There is no such danger from food cooked in up-to-date

HUNDREDS KILLED.

In Fire in Austria, Death List Already Being 400.

Budapest, March 29.—Nearly four hundred persons were killed in a terrible fire which broke out in a large coach house which had been fitted up as a ballroom in the village of Oekorito, near Mate-Szalka. In addition to the killed one hundred others were more or less seriously injured and most of these will die.

There seems to have been no public control of the arrangements. Not only were the door openings barricaded with the exception of a single small one which was used to facilitate the issuance of the tickets, but paper lanterns had been hung numerously among the dried evergreens. One of the lanterns became ignited and before the blaze could be quenched the festoon from which it was suspended was also ignited.

At first those in the hall watched the blaze with an air of half-amusement, apparently not realizing the peril. Within a short space of time, however, the whole ceiling was a roaring mass of flame. Then it was that an awful panic seized the dancers.

Speedily numbers of persons were trampled to death or suffocated while above the pile of injured and dying lawful battle raged. By this time the clothing of many of the dancers had been ignited by the blazing boughs which were constantly dropping from the roof. The flames spread from one person to another. The terrible scene was at its height when the blazing roof of the flimsy structure collapsed and fell in upon those below. A very few escaped unhurt.

POLE PLANT SOLD AT RECEIVER'S SALE

James Shields Buys Pressed
Steel Pole Works
For $3,800

MACHINERY IS WORTH $22,000

Speculation Rife as to What Purchaser
Intends to Do With Plant, But
It is Likely Works Will Soon Be Running Again at Mt. Pleasant.

Special to The Courier.
MT. PLEASANT, March 29.—The plant of the Pressed Steel Pole Company at this place was sold at receiver's sale yesterday afternoon to James Shields of this place for $3,800. The pole factory is located at the foot of East Main street and on the opposite side of the street from the Pennsylvania railroad depot. It consists of a large building 150x50 feet in its dimensions. The plant is equipped with all of the latest machinery which alone is valued at $22,000. And although only a few shipments of poles were ever manufactured and shipped from here, yet the plant is in readiness for action at the present time. The output of the plant could be shipped over the Pennsylvania railroad, and a siding is run to the door of the factory. The building was erected and equipped several years ago after a large expenditure of time and money. As a greater part of the machinery had to be made to order. After everything was in readiness the plant, owing to some unknown reason, only operated for a short time. It has been idle for over a year previous to the sale yesterday. Many rumors are afloat as to what Mr. Shields the purchaser will do with the plant but it is likely that within the course of a month or so that the pole factory will be put into operation. Men acquainted with the facts concerning the manufacture of steel poles are unanimous in their opinion that the local plant could easily be run on a paying basis. Many orders are only a small part of the advantage the concern would have if put into operation. The factory if started would probably employ 100 men, half of which would be skilled in ironwork.

Another Typhoid Patient.
A Polish miner of Hecla, name unknown, was brought to the local hospital yesterday morning suffering from typhoid fever. The man was in such a bad condition that his recovery is doubted. He now occupies of the hospital in room Monday but Robert McVey, aged seven years, of Southfield street, who was stricken with the disease last Saturday is not expected to recover. Yesterday morning the health officer, quarantined the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John True of Centre avenue as the family is stricken with the chicken pox.

Local Deaths.
Nearly 100 couples attended the dance held last night at the Bohemian hall in a night by a Slavish society of this place. The orchestra furnished music. Refreshments were served.
The three act comedy "Between the Acts" will be presented in the local opera house Friday evening April 15, by members of the local class of the High School. The play is now under the direction of Prof. R. W. Shuman and promises to be the cleverest amateur production ever staged in this town. The characters in the play are well versed in elocution and have been carefully selected. The play is being held three times a week until the time for production. The play is being held in the Bohemian hall. The success of home talent shows are the crowds. This promises to be a big feature with this play and a packed house is expected for each week.
